War Savings Canvass Still Incomplete

Miners Boost Their Subscriptions; Hope to Have Complete Report for Next Committee Meeting.

The local war savings committee met in the Community hall last Thursday evening to hear a report from the various canvassing committees.

Due to the canvassers still having several wage earners to interview it was impossible for President Wm. White and Secretary Fred Guerdal to give a report. However, from the figures at hand it was definitely known that the campaign had succeeded in boosting the monthly subscriptions and that when all canvassers have submitted their reports the $5,000 per month quota will have been reached or the subscriptions will be very close to it.

One point which President White wants brought to the local public's attention: Sickness at some time or another may so reduce a war savings subscriber's pay cheque that he is unable to meet his fortnightly subscription. He finds, however, that his employer has deducted the war savings subscription from his cheque leaving him little or nothing to draw in wages. This is not the fault of the employer as he has orders to deduct a certain amount each pay for war savings certificates. In such cases as this, President White wants the subscriber to inform his employer beforehand of his financial condition so that the war savings subscription might not be taken from the pay cheque on that particular pay.

An instance to illustrate this point was related by one of the nine office staff. They failed to deduct a war savings subscription from an employee, who due to sickness, had very little coming in his pay envelope. Their thoughtfulness, however, was rewarded by the wage earner asking why his war savings subscription had not been deducted from his statement. On the other hand the canvassers at one mine were refused a subscription because this particular party had his subscription deducted from his statement when he had only a few dollars to draw and later resulted in this party cancelling his subscription for war savings.

The only fair method to both employer and subscriber when sickness steps in is for the subscriber to inform the employer that he does or does not want the subscription deducted.

Harry Clark Named Coal Mine Manager

(Calgary Herald)

Appointment of Harry W. Clark, Coleman, as resident manager for the McLeod River Hard Coal Co., Ltd., at Mercoal, south of Edson, Alberta, was announced today by H. R. Plommer, general manager of Canadian Collieries, Vancouver Island, and the McLeod River Hard Coal, Ltd., who was a visitor in Calgary today. Mr. Plommer is accompanied by Harold Baird, general superintendent of operations.

Mr. Clark, who succeeds David Millar, as resident manager, is a graduate of mining engineering at the University of Alberta, 1925, and has been working at his profession for the past 17 years.

Some former Colemanites now residing at the Pacific coast are laboring under the impression that Coleman is experiencing cold miserable weather. Had they watched physical instructor Ray Spillers and his pupils playing football in a light drizzling rain in the midst of winter they would certainly get a surprise. This on December 1, too!

Dr. C. Rose Guest Speaker at Lethbridge Lions Banquet

Spoke on "This Wondrous Age And Another." Many Attend From States; Lethbridge Lions Celebrated 11th Annual Charter Night.

A high honor was bestowed upon Dr. C. Rose, past president of Coleman Lions club, by the Lethbridge Lions on Friday evening when he was guest speaker at their 11th annual Charter Night banquet. In previous years this honor had been given to high ranking Lions in the United States.

Choosing for his subject "This Wondrous Age and Another," he predicted that in time to come much of the furniture, homes, clothing and everyday articles would be manufactured from coal. He briefly reviewed the accomplishments of man in transportation, communications, electricity, etc., and exhibiting a stocking made from Nylon, described it as a "triumph of synthesis." Pointing out that coal was the base for nylon he explained that the black substance could be processed into hundreds of products.

In the past three years coal tar had been processed to yield three drugs that have saved many lives and effected miraculous cures. He also spoke on the contributions to medical science of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, who did much to obtain sanitation and reduction of disease in maternity cases, and Dr. Crawford Long who pioneered with ether in operations.

Of the future he said the prayer of the people was for peace, a measure of prosperity, and the right to live.

Attending the banquet from Coleman were Dr. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. P. Dickieson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wragg, Mr. and Mrs. H. Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gentile, Dr. L. Lesk, Rev. J. E. Kirk, Frank Hastings, Wm. Taylor.

PENTICTON AND CRANBROOK HAVE HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS FOR RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP

The 1942 membership drive of the local Red Cross branch has been under considerable debate during the past few meetings. The local executive were of the opinion that they would be out of order if they made a house-to-house canvass in order to renew membership in the Red Cross for 1942, and as a result have decided to send out circular letters to local citizens asking them to renew membership at $1.00 per member.

For the information of the local executive Penticton and Cranbrook papers carry stories of the house-to-house canvass being made in their respective towns at the present time. Circular letters are not being used.

Lord Beaverbrook Asks for 30,000 Tanks To Match Germany

Glasgow.—Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's supply minister, asked for 30,000 tanks to be produced from July, 1942, to July, 1943, by "all sources," including Canada and the United States, "and the wide plan of production we must lay down here."

He made this request before an assembly of shop stewards of the Amalgamated Engineering Union who promptly gave him a pledge for increased production as he assured them that as far as Britain is concerned "we have tank to meet tank if invasion is attempted."

As for Russia, he told them amid thundering cheers that "everything we have promised to Russia for delivery in October and November has been despatched."

The need for the 30,000 tanks was to match Germany's 30,000 and her continued output in what the minister of supply termed "the race of the tortoise and the hare."

"We have to get very fast to catch up on production of German tanks," he said.

He read a message received from Premier Joseph Stalin offering the thanks for the aid sent to Russia, but adding candidly that too many types of British tanks are being sent.

"... Could you limit the number of types sent to us?" Stalin queried. "It would make everything much easier."

Stalin said in the message that British planes and tanks are in action on the front line.

"For 13 days our tanks and our aircraft have been concerned in the defence of Moscow, and at the same time for 13 days our tanks have been attacking in the desert of Libya," Lord Beaverbrook said.

"We want from all sources from July of next year until July, 1943, 30,000 tanks," Lord Beaverbrook declared. "That will include the quota we get from America, what we can produce in Canada and the wide plan of production we must lay down here."

"Remember we are far behind the enemy, Stalin told me in the Kremlin that the Germans had 30,000 tanks. The Germans are producing, too, and adding to that number."

"So it's again the race of tortoise and hare..."

"The production of tanks in the week ended Saturday was the biggest ever known... The air attack on us failed. The tank attack on us failed. We have tank to meet tank if invasion is attempted."

Lord Beaverbrook said that October production was a record while November marked a big advance in both guns and tanks.

For 55 minutes after the speech Lord Beaverbrook answered questions ranging from the problem of milk supplies for the people on special jobs to nationalization of the arms industry.

The engineers passed a resolution pledging increased production "as a necessary condition for a British-Soviet victory over Fascism."

Russian Reserves

Report of Destruction of Red Army And War Production Is Unjustified

Geneva.—The Journal de Geneve said that German claims regarding destruction of the Red army and Soviet war production are unjustified and that huge Russian reserves still exist in the Far East.

Attributing command of the Red army of the Far East to Marshal Vassily K. Blucher, the paper said he still has 20 divisions of infantry (about 360,000), six divisions of motorized troops and his entire force of heavy bombers untouched by the conflict in the west. Some forces from western Siberia have been drawn to the front, however, the paper said.

Marshal Blucher's whereabouts has been a mystery since about three years ago when there were indications he had been removed from the Far Eastern command.

The paper estimated Soviet production from east of the Volga at 2,500 tanks, 2,000 planes and 10,000 trucks a month. Enormous stocks of munitions were accumulated east of the Volga before the war started and these have not been drawn upon, it was said.

Russia has enough shells stored there to last through three months of heavy fighting and enough bullets for six months, the author said.

Supplies For Free French

Tanks And Trucks Sent From U.S. To North Africa

Washington.—United States military supplies, it was officially said, have been going to the Free French forces in North Africa for approximately three months under an informal arrangement with Britain.

This statement followed announcement by the Free French delegation in the United States of the extension of lend-lease assistance to the armies of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The supplies, re-transferred to the Free French forces after delivery to the British authorities in the Middle East, consist of tanks, trucks and "a number of other items, including ordnance."

No Exemptions

Urges Government To Enforce Military Service On All Sets

Winnipeg.—Delegates at the annual convention of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities approved a resolution urging the federal government to enforce all the duties and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship including military service, upon all sets.

H. E. Welland of McCreery said that the fact the federal government had allowed certain sets to come into Canada free from military duties had not been overlooked, adding that when it comes down to the second and third generation most of the members of the sets are naturalized citizens of Canada.

GETS TWO SETS OF WINGS

It took Harold H. E. Flewman, Toronto, just 13 months to earn two sets of wings in the R.C.A.F. Harold is one of the few privileged to wear the double wings of the pilot and the single wing of observer. Chosen for special ability along with 15 other lads, Harold is now in New Brunswick taking a special course in navigation.

Christmas Leave

Ottawa.—Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are to be given five days' leave at Christmas or New Year's in cases where they can be spared from their duties, C.W.A.C. officials said.

Prisoners Recaptured

Two German Airmen Escaped From British Prison Camp

London.—An official inquiry will be held into the escape of two German airmen who were recaptured after they broke from a British prison camp and stole an airplane in an apparent attempt to return to Germany.

The ministry of information announcement which confirmed the airmen's escape and recapture did not make any reference to the aircraft theft but it is understood the machine the Germans "commandeered" was probably a small trainer craft.

Earlier the Daily Express had reported the craft the airmen stole was a Royal Air Force bomber and said they were forced down near an airfield more than 100 miles from where they took off.

The Daily Express said the prisoners had posed as Netherlands when recaptured.

Fine Was Heavy

Company In London Offered Fraudulent Food For Sale

London.—"Chocolate flavored bilpster's paste" was an analyst's description of a food purporting to be malted milk when a company was fined the equivalent of $150 for advertising and offering the food for sale. The analyst said the food contained 10 per cent cocoa and 90 per cent, weakened flour.

HERO OF LAST STAND AT CALAIS

Nonchalantly smoking a cigarette, Sergeant Peter M. Mitchell of the Royal British Marines is interviewed by the press in New York city after being particularly praised in a British admiralty statement commending the gallantry of 85 British marines covering a naval demolition party in the evacuation of the French channel port of Calais in May, 1940. Sergeant Mitchell was awarded the Conspicuous Gallantry Medal for bringing many wounded comrades to safety "under intense machine-gun fire and dive-bombing attacks." Only 21 of the 85 marines came back.

Build Huge Workshop To Repair Canada's War Equipment

Atlantic Ferry Job

Expect U.S. Air Corps May Soon Engage In This Work

Washington.—Well-informed military authorities indicated it is only a matter of time until the United States Army Air Corps "ferry command" begins flying military planes across the Atlantic to Britain.

Bombers, which already are being flown over in large numbers by the Royal Air Force ferry command, Afters, and fighters may eventually be taken across by American airmen, it was said. Their flights would supplement rather than replace those of the R.A.F. ferry command, according to these informants.

So far as is known, trans-Atlantic ferrying to date has been limited to bombers of long cruising range.

Attention was focussed afresh on the activities of the ferry command by a war department press release summarizing the activities of this organization.

This review said that "although up to the present time the Air Corps ferry command itself flies no ships across the Atlantic, it is responsible for getting them to take-off points." Inquiry as to the significance of his reference produced an authoritative statement "the future is being anticipated."

Congress recently removed neutrality Act restrictions barring United States merchant ships from belligerent ports. It has been argued that if merchant ships can take dismantled planes across the ocean's surface there would appear to be no reason why the planes should not be flown across.

Airman Decorated

Flying Officer Receives The Distinguished Flying Cross

London.—A flying officer who piloted an aircraft from which British parachute troops were dropped into Italy early this year was decorated by the King in a recent investiture at Buckingham Palace, it was disclosed.

The nature of the award and name of the officer were not revealed. The award was not connected with the daring flight to Italy. The officer received the Distinguished Flying Cross for his part in daylight raids on Brest and La Pallice, ports of Occupied France.

Invented In Australia

Compressed Air Propulsion Makes Kirby Gun A Powerful Weapon

Canberra.—An Australian wartime invention, described as a "super-mortar" and officially known as the Kirby gun, is being officially tested here. The weapon's novel feature is compressed air propulsion instead of propulsion by an explosion in the cartridge. The gun is believed to be able to throw a projectile 1,200 feet in the air.

Ottawa.—There's never been anything like this workshop they've figured out at defence headquarters for keeping in good shape the mechanized equipment of Canada's rough-riding soldiery overseas.

It will be the greatest garage and repair workshop in the world. But it will be more than that. It will also look after all the army's artillery repairs and the fixing of war's new and delicate instruments such as radio, signal and optical apparatus.

On the army records this new unit, designed to make the Canadian corps just that much more self-sustained, will be known as the 1st Canadian Base Ordnance Workshop. It will have 1,600 enlisted men, every one of them skilled in his particular trade and under command of Lt.-Col. G. A. Secord of Toronto.

"We're going to apply on the necessarily large scale the latest North American practices for repairing, conditioning and rebuilding our equipment," Victor Sifton, master-general of the ordnance, said.

"This will be the most up-to-date, all-purpose plant possible, designed to do repairs of all kinds, large and small, and get equipment back into action in the fastest possible time."

Set up somewhere in England—the buildings are going up now—the workshop will be designed, if such fashion that if necessary demands, its location can be changed in a hurry. That is, it will be movable but not mobile.

Seventy-five per cent. of the necessary tools are on hand. Altogether 95 per cent. of the mass of equipment will be Canadian-made. And the unit will be in operation faster than any other project the army has undertaken.

Col. Secord pictured a steady stream of repair jobs coming into the workshop, including tanks, armored cars, motorcycles, heavy guns, Bren gun carriers, signal equipment of all kinds.

"This will not be just a place for fixing," he said, "there will be cases of straight rebuilding, virtually from the ground up."

Col. Secord's plans show 252,288 square feet of space taken up with his main buildings, everything mapped out in the precise spot it will occupy.

Reconnaissance Over France

R.C.A.F. Squadron Makes First Sortie With New Equipment

Ottawa.—A Royal Canadian Air Force squadron on army co-operation duties recently made its first operational sortie with new aircraft equipment, a communique issued by R.C.A.F. headquarters said.

The sortie was carried out by 24-year-old Wing Cmdr. H. W. Kerby of Toronto commanding officer, and PO. G. C. H. Jackson of Edmonton carried them on an offensive reconnaissance over the coast of occupied France.

Trade Board Will Establish Regional Offices Across Canada

Ottawa.—Wartime prices and trade board officials said that establishment of 13 regional offices with regional representatives of the board were being planned.

This system will make available services required at convenient points from Vancouver to the Atlantic coast, with local representatives who may be consulted on any particular phase of the board's price stabilization program.

The wartime price and trade board, an assembly of all the talents—so far as trade and business is concerned—is being brought together in Ottawa.

New officials and advisers are arriving faster than offices can be set up for them. They will assist the board in administration of the price-ceiling on almost all commodities bought and sold in Canada.

They include clothing manufacturers, and retail merchants handling various lines of goods from furs and jewelry to bread and potatoes. Scarcely a day passes but the board announces a new appointment. The board has taken over all but the ground floor of an Ottawa office building.

Throughout the country regional offices are being set up. For these also men must be appointed to keep watch on all lines of trade and they must have tools and staff with which to work; means of communicating with headquarters in Ottawa for instructions; means of receiving, investigating and acting on possible complaints from Mrs. Smith that Mr. Jones the grocer has boosted the price of beans by a cent to-day, "so what?"

Hand-in-hand with the organization of the price control machinery the board is building an information section to keep the public informed of what it is doing and why.

F. W. Prendergast of Imperial Oil Company has been placed in charge and with him as a start—perhaps on a temporary basis until a permanent staff can be organized—are Ken Wieman, staff writer for the Financial Post; Fred Griffin, feature writer of the Toronto Star, whose assignments have taken him over the greater part of the world, and Carl Reimke of the press corps' staff and formerly of The Canadian Press.

New Outbreaks Of Anti-Nazi Violence In Occupied France

Vichy.—New anti-Nazi violence is occurring in occupied France, it was reported reliably. The Nazi military command in Paris announced a 1,000,000 franc ($20,000) fine and severe curfew restrictions in reprisal for outbreaks there.

Lieut. Gen. Ernst von Schaumburg, Nazi commander in Paris, announced that in view of recent dynamite attacks against German premises any person found in illegal possession of explosives would be executed.

The fine was imposed upon the municipality in punishment for a series of explosions which damaged German army property and equipment.

At the same time a drastic 5 p.m. curfew was imposed for four days upon the districts of the city where the outbreaks occurred.

The Paris explosions coincided with new sabotage incidents occurring in the military zone adjoining the French coast.

One of the sabotage outbreaks occurred near Abbeville, it was reported. The second was near Noyelle.

In the Noyelle attack the saboteurs employing what was described as "special technical material" jammed a railroad switch after removing some cross ties and thus derailed a passenger train. There was said to have been no casualties but property damage was caused.

The Abbeville sabotage was also directed against a railroad.

In the Paris bombings, the Germans said, no one was killed, but considerable property damage was caused.

One of the Paris bombings occurred in a restaurant near the Montparnasse station requisitioned for the use of German railroad mail employees. The bomb was tossed through a window. No one was injured although 17 Germans were in the restaurant. One died on the terrorist but didn't hit him.

One area hit by the curfew was the famous Latin quarter. Cafes and restaurants along the Boulevard Saint Michel and the Boulevard Montparnasse were ordered closed at 5 p.m. each day.

"In another few months—another half year or one year, perhaps—Hitler's Germany must burst of its own weight of crimes."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Government Should Lead

It is the privilege of democratic people to criticize their governments. There are many things which are open to question and which it is well to give voice to as occasion demands. Mutual admiration societies in government circles lead to complacency, therefore it is a mighty good thing to hear criticism or opinions from the great body of the masses.

In this matter of salvage, conservation of gasoline, conservation of everything, governments do not set the example. Of course, the government is made up of just average people, but they are elected to lead instead of waiting to be led by public opinion, particularly in times of national crisis. In the matter of gasoline we see daily evidences of needless waste by governmental departments, which multiplied many times over throughout the Dominion, do not encourage the ordinary individual to be as careful as he might. Newspaper offices receive reams of "tripe" in free copy, of which the editor of the Bowmanville Statesman stated that he received in one week sufficient to fill all the columns of three weeks' issues of his paper. His experience is common to weekly and daily newspapers. He states the "government ballyhoos salvage, and yet here are tons of paper and printed matter being prepared by hundreds of office squatters, to be consigned, unread, to waste-paper baskets. The wonder is that a Controller has not been appointed to govern this utterly senseless drain on Canada's national resources and editors' patience."

No Country to Fight For is Excuse

The need for national selective conscription becomes more apparent as the war goes on. In the mining centres of Alberta there has been a good response to join the air service and the army and navy, but the majority of these enlistments have been from the British born. True there is a percentage of sons of foreign born parents, and all honor to them for realizing that they, too, have a duty to the country of which they are citizens.

Here is an instance which is all too common, and which emphasizes the need of selective conscription: A young man of a European country was grumbling because he was not getting steady work in the mine, though work has been far more steady than it has been for years. A soldier acquaintance remarked that if he was dissatisfied, he should join the army. The reply given by the grumbler was that the country to which he formerly belonged didn't exist any more, that he had no country to fight for. It is this sort of thing that gets under the skin of people who see fellows hanging back on any kind of excuse, receiving the benefit of steady work at good wages, while the British born give up their jobs and take the $1.30 a day rate of soldiers' pay. This is another instance which serves to show the necessity of a government leading and not waiting to be forced to take action.

The Farmer Suffers in Silence

While industrial workers receive steady wages and cost of living bonuses, farmers have to struggle on without any of these considerations. Here are some figures which show the handicap under which the farmer tries to carry on:

Farm machinery advanced 15 per cent in May 1940, and repairs went up 20 per cent. Dairy equipment advanced 10 per cent to 15 per cent, and steel products 20 to 25 per cent. Herd replacements were up 25 per cent and feed costs 15 per cent. Farm labor had increased from 30 to 50 per cent in cost. That was the estimate a year ago. All of the above percentages have increased since then and farm labor is nearly double over the spring of 1940. Yet milk prices to the farmer have risen only 8.3 per cent and a ceiling has been clamped on the price which he may receive.

Price Ceiling Must Be Maintained

Statements have been made by consumers that their bills for household living expenses have substantially increased in recent months. There is no doubt that costs all along the line have increased, and it will be remembered that during the last war there was practically no limit to the sky-rocketing of prices. It is well remembered that in clothing alone prices increased 200 per cent over the pre-war price, and in some cases higher. There was rank profiteering. This is to be prevented during this war by the price ceiling which is now law. Readers are particularly advised to read the announcement in this paper issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, for it gives information of vital importance to all concerned.

Christmas Shopping Problems

With the approach of Christmas, there is the urge to do shopping early, but nearly everyone leaves off some purchases till just before closing time on Christmas Eve, giving themselves the jitters as well as the store staffs. As everyone likes a little spare time in the evening of Christmas Eve, why not give the store-people a break and really do your shopping early.

Red Cross Appeals For Aid to Russia

Appeal Through Press and Radio; No Direct Canvass For This Fund.

The Canadian Government has asked the Canadian Red Cross to make an appeal to the Canadian public for the relief of Russia.

The appeal is to be limited to $500,000 and to be made by way of an appeal through the Press and Radio. There is to be no direct canvass of this fund, involving an approach by a canvasser upon a prospective contributor with the object of securing a donation from such contributor for these purposes.

Monies donated to this fund are exclusive of contributions already made by the Red Cross to Russia. This is an emergency appeal in order to buy medical and hospital supplies for Russia.

The Red Cross will make a special effort to get donations from the foreign language elements in the Canadian population.

"LET DEMOCRACY RULE"

Fight, fight, fight, is every man's cry.

To give us peace, and Hitler's power defy;

For every man will do his best, And so at last, the world may rest, O'er in Europe, where bombs are hell,

How many lives go, none can tell— But what rate the deaths may be, We are not to blame as all can see. The cause of this, was made by one, Without taking heed from anyone He went ahead, with a greedy eye; Bound to conquer all under God's great sky.

The prayer of us all from sea to sea,

Is that the allies shall gain supremacy;

And never more shall dictator-ship rise,

Nor gunsmoke darken our peaceful skies.

—Miss Mabel Bryant, Eweline.

They Need Weapons

Our fighting men must have better guns . . . better planes . . . faster ships and stouter tanks than the enemy has. It's up to those of us who are not in active service to provide our fighting men with the things they need. Our community is asked to do its share in a nation-wide drive to provide War Weapons. Let's do more than our share.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board Licenses Must Be Obtained

Ottawa—Gold and blue window license certificates will be appearing within the next few days on the store fronts of 30,000 Canadian business houses which manufacture or deal in food, feeds, cloth, clothing, or footwear.

"Thirty thousand of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board window transfers will be in the mail to early applicants for license by tomorrow night," explained C. E. Morphy, director of licensing. "Further mailings will be made daily. Applications for license are being received at our Ottawa offices at the rate of five thousand every twenty-four hours."

The licensing director, who is at present on a tour through western Canada to confer with the four regional licensing directors west of the Great Lakes, at the same time issued a warning to Canadian businessmen.

"Applicants for license must remember," Mr. Morphy pointed out, "that it takes at least 10 days from the time of mailing until a businessman receives his window certificate and license identification card. When that time element is considered it means that between now and November 20 the number of applications we receive each day must be stepped up to ten thousand."

"Businessmen who do not get their applications for license in early may expect severe penalties on themselves," the director of licensing concluded. "After December 1, no person or firm may continue to manufacture, or to handle or sell food, feeds, livestock, poultry, yarn, cloth, clothing or footwear unless they are licensed by the Board."

Capital Capers

An executive came to Washington to see about priorities on an item used in the making of motors. He went from office to office telling his story, but no one could direct him where to find out what he wanted. Finally, in the OPM labyrinth, an official gave him a sound clue.

"I'll tell you what to do," he said. "Go back to Florida and write us a letter. The messenger in the mail room will know where to send it."—Nation's Business.

Bringing the total to eight in the province, two new health units have recently been established under the direction of the Department of Health. They are at Holden, comprising the Holden school division, and at Clover Bar. Technical staff of this latter unit will be located in the Qu'Appelle Bldg., Edmonton. Object of the unit system is to bring medical services on a par with urban centres to the rural areas organized. A medical officer and nurses are full time staff members, concerned with all phases of public health. It is reported that Ponoka District is also considering adoption of the unit plan.

Red Cross Special By GARRY ALLIGHAN

London — All through one night recently a child moaned piteously in a South Wales hospital. I sat in a waiting room with the child's mother. That sound is still echoing in my mind; I shall never be able to shake it out. It is all part of the tragedy of the — family, the latest victims of Hitler's recent petulant raid on South Wales. Muriel, aged eight and her mother are all who are left of a family of six. Muriel's future life will be one of long horror, while her mother's reason is shocked beyond repair.

"Eleven people killed, 12 detained in hospital, is the result of a raid on a South Wales town," stated an official announcement with dramatic inadequacy next day, telegraphing the tragedy into one attenuated sentence. "The raid was on a small scale."

To Mrs. — it was no small scale raid that brought down the house over their heads, flung a heavy firebomb from a bedroom, on to her husband, blasted a baby from its crib, knocked two boys black, and pinned down and horribly injured Muriel—all this before her slowly maddening eyes as she lay buried in wreckage up to her neck. No wonder she is gasped perilously on the edge of insanity.

When a rescue squad with the Red Cross rushed to the wrecked house, even such workers, injured to horror and immune from shock, stood ice cold at the sight and sound—the sight of death and the mad light in the woman's dilated eyes; the sound of Muriel's moaning. It took two hours to release the mother, during which she sprawled beneath the rubble in merciful unconsciousness, induced by opiates provided by the Canadian Red Cross. She was spared the sight of the removal of her dead husband, the boys and the baby; spared the sound of Muriel's moans as she was tenderly lifted to a stretcher and carried from the wrecked home to a fine three-piece Red Cross mobile unit.

Surgical dressings, drugs, medical supplies of all sorts provided by Canada, are stored in the dispensary car forming part of the unit. A surgeon skillfully performed a preliminary operation on Muriel's damaged arm, then she was quickly transferred to a Canadian Red Cross ambulance and rushed to hospital.

Mrs. — is a little eased mentally although her head, arms, face and legs are incessantly trembling as if attached to some invisible spring that has been set vibrating. As every moon seeps through the ward door; she gives an echoing gasp.

Mrs. — only spoke once in the hospital. "Oh, my poor little darling," she said in a high pitched unnatural voice. "She was so looking forward to Christmas."

Please send your donation to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund, either through your local society or direct to the Canadian Red Cross Society, 95 Wellesley St., Toronto.

Ash Truck Damaged

The ash truck, owned by Charlie Makin, suffered considerable damage at 11.30 a.m. Wednesday when it crashed through the fence at the top of Ed. Leier's yard on Second street and careened down the hill, overturning once when it dumped its load, and coming to a stop on its wheels alongside Mr. Leier's residence. Damage was done mainly to the front of the truck. Mr. Makin had only the day before taken delivery of the truck after it had been given an overhaul.

Across The Atlantic In A Refugee Ship

This is the first of a series of articles about conditions in Great Britain and other parts of Europe, written exclusively for the weekly newspapers of Canada by Hugh Templin, of the Fergus News-Record.

Somewhere in the Atlantic, between the Azores and Bermuda. What a strange place this is for the editor of a Canadian weekly newspaper to be in this latter part of October, 1941, after more than two years of war!

And when you come to think of it, what a strange place for anyone to be, unless driven by dire necessity.

Most of the other 140 people on board the U.S. Steamship Exambion are here because of necessity. They are fleeing from unhappy Europe, glad enough to get away in spite of perils that may still lie ahead. They are refugees, hoping for peace in the United States. The passenger list contains the name of a Prince related to one of the still-ruling royal families of Europe. There are such names as Gomez y Gomez, and Pastuhov, and Pin Tsao, and Radziejewski. There is a group of wholesome young people who have left the U.S. Embassy in Berlin while the going is good, and several Chinese families, including some cute little children, being withdrawn from the Embassy in Switzerland. There is a man from the British diplomatic service, occupying a cabin all by himself because he carries confidential information to Washington, and there is a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy in civilian clothes, returning from a mission to Britain. There are two English women forced to leave France on 24 hours' notice. They have not tasted meat for two years because they fed their entire ration, such as it was, to a Siamese cat that now accompanies them on the ship. There is a little French girl who ordered two poached eggs for breakfast her first morning on the boat and then could not eat them when they came, but sat and cried salt tears over them because her appetite was gone. And another family from Unoccupied France ate nothing but potatoes for their first few meals. There is even a stately English woman who crawled out under barbed wire entanglements to get to Portugal, and so on this ship.

Editors on a Refugee Ship
In such a crowd as this, eleven Canadian editors may seem rather out of place, and truly, none of us ever expected to be on this ship. We had planned to go flying through the air from Lisbon to New York, returning as we had come. But in October flying conditions are uncertain. We seemed likely to wait in Lisbon for weeks before our turn came to go on the Clipper. One week in that city got us down. Those who were not actually sick were entirely unenthusiastic about any more Lisbon meals or climate or scenery. We were nervous after being trailed day after day by members of the German gestapo who stayed in the same hotel as we did. When the chance came to leave by boat, we took it. One of the editors is from St. John, N.B. He loves the sea and boats and all things connected with them, and he jumped at the chance to come by ship. All the rest of us would have preferred to travel by air.

Those in Peril on the Seas

HUGH TEMPLIN

This is the editor of the Fergus (Ont.) News-Record, who was one of a delegation of Canadian editors who went to Britain to see something of wartime conditions. Mr. Templin is a weekly newspaper publisher who was born in Fergus, educated at University of Toronto, worked for four years in the Ontario legislature, married and has three sons. For many years he has been interested in flying and recently completed a series of articles on the Empire training plan. More about the R.C.A.F. will appear in later stories of this series.

Four days before we left Lisbon, the papers of that city were all excited because a Portuguese ship had been sunk by the Germans, apparently because of untimely ore on board, destined for the United States. Two days later, they were mourning the deaths of two British families from Portugal, returning to England until their ship was torpedoed off the coast. On the way to Lisbon, this same steamship Exambion was met by a German bombing plane which circled around it, mast-high, and then flew away again. On the day we sailed from Lisbon, news came that the Germans had torpedoed the American destroyer Kearny. Two days out, an American freight boat was sunk in the Atlantic, straight south of where we were. This very morning, when we awoke, it was to see another ship coming closer. As it drew near, we could see that it wasn't the merchant vessel it pretended to be, but had business-like guns fore and aft. It had no flag, nor gave any signal, but crossed our bows and went on. We all realized these dangers, but as the days passed and our boat continued on its way, the tension relaxed. The restful, monotonous days on board ship gave us all time to recover from strenuous and exciting times overseas.

When the invitation came to me to go to England for a few weeks to represent the weekly papers of Canada, there were many who envied me because of that opportunity. If it is any comfort to them now, I can say quite truthfully that there were times when I would gladly have traded places with any of them. Travel across the Atlantic these days is something that should not be undertaken except from necessity.

Adventurous Weeks
But on the whole these have been wonderful weeks. I have crossed the Atlantic by air, one of the most romantic voyages in the world today. I have flown altogether some 9,000 miles by American Clipper, Royal Dutch Air Lines and British Overseas Airways. I have visited Bermuda, the Azores, England, Southern Ireland and Portugal. I have talked with Winston Churchill, many members of his Cabinet, Britain's greatest newspaper men, a former Canadian Prime Minister, and the Canadian High Commissioner, the Canadian Corps Commander and many of his officers and soldiers, most a host of the "common people" of England, who have come through bombings, have lost their homes and their relatives, yet carry on in Britain's hour of need. I have tasted the hospitality of great and small in England and have made new friends there.

There have been plenty of thrills. I have flown down the Bay of Biscay in a seaplane with not a light showing and the hostile enemy coast not far away. I have stood on a roof-top in London with the fire-watches and have seen the distant flashes of anti-aircraft guns shooting at an enemy plane approaching the city. I have been through a "blitz" myself—have seen and heard and felt the explosions of huge enemy land mines and have come through the ordeal unscathed but knowing that if any one of a dozen things had been slightly different, I would not have been here at all. I have been at a bomber station and have talked to the boys who make the long trips over France and Germany to unload their charges of death, and I have seen the Royal Canadian Air Force fighter pilots come back to their airports after being in action.

England in Wartime

I have heard Churchill defend his actions on the floor of the House of Commons and have stood amid the ruins of Coventry Cathedral. I have walked in the London blackout and in the pleasant English countryside, where every garden had its large, late roses. I have been trailed by the German gestapo in Lisbon and have seen a bullfight. I have ridden on trains, in buses, in cars, in the underground, and have talked to friendly folk everywhere.

These are the things I shall write about in the series of stories which will appear in this newspaper during the next three months. Always provided, of course, that the Exambion does not meet an unfriendly submarine or bombing plane somewhere this side of New York.

MUST HAVE ALBERTA OIL

"One thing is certain. We have to get all the oil we can out of Alberta." Thus G. R. Cottrell, Dominion oil controller, revealed that the greatest exploratory program in Canadian history is under way here. "A tremendous amount of work has been done in mapping out prospective fields and what remains to be done is to drill wells," added Mr. Cottrell. "It would give me a lot of peace of mind and some pleasure if they would get busy and drill wells in the Vermilion and Battleville fields. Those people who have lands under lease had better go to work on it."

THE PRICE CEILING ORDER IS NOW LAW

A fine up to $5,000 and two years imprisonment is provided for offences against this law

What You Must Do to Comply With the Law

1. As a Consumer

You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest price charged for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. If in doubt, ask your merchant for proof the price he asks is a lawful price under the Price Ceiling order. Normal seasonal price changes in fresh fruits and vegetables and greenhouse products are exempt.

2. As a Retailer

You must not sell goods or services for more than the highest price at which you sold such goods or services in the basic period, September 15 to October 11.

You must not buy goods or services from manufacturers or wholesalers or any other sources for more than the highest price you paid to them in the basic period.

It is intended that cases of serious hardship should be adjusted by reducing the cost of merchandise to the retailer. Retailers whose cost of merchandise delivered to them after November 30 is too high in relation to the ceiling prices, should get in touch with their suppliers and try to arrange an adjustment fair to both parties.

The price of goods of a kind or quality not sold during the basic period must not be more than the highest price charged for substantially similar goods in the basic period.

3. As a Wholesaler

You must not sell goods or services at more than your highest price (less discounts then prevailing) for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest prices paid during the basic period.

Wholesalers will be expected in some cases to reduce their prices below the ceiling in order that their retail accounts may carry on. Wholesalers in turn may have to ask their suppliers for price reductions.

The continued flow of goods through normal channels if of the utmost importance and the Board will intervene if suppliers divert business abnormally from one customer to another.

4. As a Manufacturer

You must not sell at prices higher than your highest price (less discounts then prevailing) during the basic period, September 15 to October 11.

In some cases it will be necessary for manufacturers to reduce their prices below the ceiling so that wholesale and retail accounts may carry on.

Where maintenance of the retail ceiling requires manufacturers' prices to be substantially reduced, the Board will investigate and in proper cases will afford necessary relief.

Imports

Retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers are assured by the Board that any considerable increases in the costs of import of essential goods will be covered either by subsidies or by adjustment of taxes. Details will be announced shortly.

Services Also Come Under This Law

The Price Ceiling law also applies to rates and charges for electricity, gas, steam heat, water, telegraph, wireless, telephone, transportation, provision of dock, harbour and pier facilities; warehousing and storage; manufacturing processes performed on a commission or custom basis; undertaking and embalming; laundering, cleaning, tailoring and dressmaking; hairdressing, barbering and beauty parlour services; plumbing, heating, painting, decorating, cleaning and renovating; repairing of all kinds; supplying of meals, refreshments and beverages; exhibiting of motion pictures.

NO CHEATING OR EVASION OF THE PRICE CEILING LAW WILL BE TOLERATED

"How the Price Law Works," a pamphlet setting forth how each branch of business must apply the regulations to its own operation will shortly be available at Post Offices and Branch Banks.

The Board will soon open Regional Offices throughout Canada where problems may be discussed. These Offices will co-operate with business in the adjustment of difficulties.

The Price Ceiling law is vital to Canada's war effort.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

In one month troops in training in Canada made use of Y.M.C.A. facilities 1,500,000 times.

One in every three post office workers in Britain has joined the navy, army, air force, civil defence service or home guard—a total of 113,000.

Using wood and other materials from bombed buildings, men and women of London fire stations used their spare time making 1,000 toys for children evacuated from the capital.

The "Aeroplane" says a special plastic container for dropping gasoline and water supplies from airplanes, with or without parachutes, has been produced in India by research director, S. S. Bhattacharya.

Landing of a British army in Europe would make Gallipoli look like child's play, High Commissioner Sir Ronald Cross said in explaining difficulties of an immediate continental invasion.

Lord Beaverbrook told a private meeting of representatives of all parties in the House of Commons that as minister of supply he needs a far greater labor force for war production.

Commissions in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force now are open to women suitable for training as weather forecasters in the meteorological branch of the Royal Air Force.

Between Two Fears

London Paper Says Switzerland Is 'Losing Economic Independence'

Landlocked Switzerland is rapidly losing the measure of economic independence she enjoyed despite the war, before the collapse of France, the London Economist said in a review of the Swiss trade and economic situation.

"Outwardly, there is hardly any change in the 'war economy' that was organized in Switzerland at the beginning of the war," the Economist said.

"Then, large stocks of foodstuffs and raw materials prevented serious difficulties; but now these stocks are disappearing, and industrial self-sufficiency is not possible in a mountainous country without coal, iron or metal resources."

Swiss industry was caught between two fears. On the one hand the elaborate organization of the "war economy" was thought to be a menace to private industry; on the other hand, without it German economic penetration would find no obstacle.

"If Germany decided to end Swiss industrial activity or to put pressure on the country, the suspension of sales of coal and iron and steel manufactures would be sufficient," the Economist said.

Still Being Tested

Soldiers Have Tried Out New Type Of Body Armor

A new type of lightweight body armor has been issued to several divisions of Britain's new army.

Soldiers said they did not feel the additional burden after exercises in full fighting order, including double-quick advances, periods without food and swimming across rivers.

The armor was perfected after more than two years of experimentation, authorities said. It is still undergoing tests.

The new armor's total weight is only about two pounds. It is padded inside and made in three sections. Details are a military secret.

A Polish force of one hundred thousand men will soon be ready to fight against the Germans in Russia. They should be able to strike a righteous blow for victory, for never has the cause of armed men been more just.

Smaller Turkeys

Are Being Developed In State College Of North Carolina

Rays of cheery news slip through the warcloud pall now and then. One of these pleasant glimmers of hope is the tip from the Farm Research Division of the North Carolina State College that a small turkey is being developed for the market, says the New York Times.

As the average American home shrinks in number of rooms and in size of refrigerator and oven, the annual bird of the nation is following suit. Thousands of victims of the large turkey to which the country has been accustomed these many years will hail this information joyfully.

Turkey is all right with most of us for one day at a time, and probably for a second day. But turkey that lingers on in various forms and guises through an entire week, appearing now as cold cuts, now as stew, now as croquettes, later as hash and finally as soup, outstays its welcome and outlasts the enthusiasm of its consumer. One can have too much of a good thing, even turkey. One can be fed up with it.

YOUNG-LOOKING TWO-PIECE FROCK

By Anne Adams

The new vogue for the supple, longer-waisted look is interpreted by Anne Adams in this two-piece frock that is so practical and young! The blouse of Pattern 4915 buttons down the front and is becomingly gathered at the centre panels. The three-quarter sleeves are new too—or make them full-length or short. The skirt is gracefully cut in only three sections, which shortens sewing time. Why not plan two versions of this frock, and use the transfer motif on the jacket of one? The leaves may be appliqued and the stems embroidered, or the whole design embroidered in easy stitches. The other frock might have a contrast skirt, a tiny collar. Pattern includes Sewing Instructions.

Pattern 4915 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, three-quarter sleeve dress, takes 4½ yards 39 inch fabric; long sleeve dress, 2½ yards 54 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly: Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Plenty Of Recreation

Nothing Has Been Neglected To Provide Amusement For Soldiers

The Y.M.C.A. has sent back word to Canada that it requires 1,400 rugby footballs, 2,000 Chinese checker boards, 5,000 checker boards, 10,000 cribbage boards, 5,000 sets of horse-shoes, five gross of golf balls, 28,800 decks of playing cards and 864 sets of boxing gloves, from which it may be easily judged that the recreational side of Canadian soldiers' lives overseas is not being neglected.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

Be it for community enjoyment or festival competition, the problems to be faced are just the same, and must be overcome, if a tip-top production is to be the result. The most important problem is securing suitable material. Many catalogues are available from dozens of publishers, but you may spend hours reading them, send for a dozen first rate plays, as you think, and if you secure one that will suit your purpose, you will be lucky. What's the next step, I hear you ask? Well, the next step is to secure someone who has made a study of this thing called Drama or Theatre or Play Production and discuss the matter with them, either in a personal visit or by letter. Be sure to mention how many men and women are available and how experienced they are, also how much experience your director has had.

Consideration of the time element in play production is a very important item, and should be gone into thoroughly. Usually those who plan to sponsor plays decide they need a play in three weeks for some worthy object, the minister's salary, pants for the hockey team, or a donation for the bombed victims in Britain. No matter what the cause, give the director and the cast time to do a creditable show. Of course, if the director chosen is experienced, he won't be badgered into a hurry-up job, but these talks are for those who are doing this work for the first or second time.

Take a couple of months to do a one act play if you can. Then a group of players will have an opportunity to study their parts, build up worthy characterizations and the net results will really be worth while for everybody concerned. But enuf sed this time. Watch again next week.—Mary Ellen.

A Winter Problem

We wonder, says the Kingston Whig-Standard, in view of the need for conserving all the steel we can in Canada for munitions production, whether it will be patriotic for householders to lay two snow shovels this winter one for themselves and one for the neighbors?

More air gunners will be needed by the R.C.A.F. if it gets enough of a type of aircraft it wants, Air Minister Power told parliament. "Tail-end Charlies, they are called," Major Power said. "They are the men who sit in the tail end of bombing machines with all heaven above and hell below."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 7

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

Golden text: Christ also loved the church, and gave himself up for it. Ephesians 5:25.

Lesson: Matthew 16:13-20, 18:15-20; Acts 2:37-47; 8:1, 9:31; 1 Corinthians 7:17, 12:4-31; Galatians 1:13, 21-24; Ephesians 1:15-23, 4:1-16, 5:25-27; Revelation 1:10, 11.

Devotional reading: Revelation 21:9-18.

Explanations and Comments

Life in the Early Church, Acts 2:41-47. Those who at Pentecost were led to believe in Christ numbered three thousand. They were baptized and became faithful members of the Christian community or church. They were steadfast in their attention to the teaching of the apostles, lived in wonderful unity and comradeship with all, and shared in the breaking of bread and in the public prayers. At the beginning of a meal the bread which was in the form of thin, flat cakes, was solemnly blessed and broken for distribution.

At first the followers of Christ made no effort to form any ecclesiastical organization. All that believed were together. They met in private houses, they used the Psalms for praise, they repeated the Lord's Prayer, and they met frequently, probably weekly, to partake of Communion, which was followed by a supper, partly for its social fellowship, and partly to provide food for those in need. The one condition of their fellowship was love and loyalty to their Master; they lived without friction in an absolute, equal brotherhood. The rich shared with the poor, selling their possessions for this purpose as there was need. They were not communists, but they acted under the urge of a fine community spirit, realizing that they were God's stewards and that their possessions were to be used for others as well as for themselves.

They took their bread with gladness and thanksgiving. And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved.

The goal of the Christian Church, Ephesians 4:11-16. Verses 11-16 form one sentence in Paul's soaring description of the goal set before the church. Some of the Ephesians were apostles; some, prophets; some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers. Their duties included education (perfecting of the saints), social service (ministering), and evangelism (building up the Church, the Body of Christ).

"Till we all attain unto the unity of faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God unto a full grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. This means, not that we are to become perfect men and women, but that, through the Christian view of God and the world which results from a personal knowledge of the Son of God, we are to strive toward the highest conception which Christ himself has given us."

Wheat Stocks

Visible Wheat Supply Reaches An All-Time High

The visible supply of Canadian wheat reached an all-time high on October 31, 1941, when 502.4 million bushels were in sight. Of this total 455 million bushels were in Canadian elevators and 20 millions in U.S. elevators, while 27 million bushels were in transit by rail or on the Great Lakes. The visible supply had been rising very slowly as the result of a delayed harvest, but in the last three weeks of October more than 23 millions of an increase was noted. Export shipments, although 11.8 million bushels larger than in the August-October quarter of the 1940-41 season are not large enough to offset the movement from farms.—Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada.

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

COMBATTING TUBERCULOSIS

Modern methods of combatting tuberculosis have resulted in reducing deaths from that disease in all provinces of Canada, it is shown by Dr. G. J. Wherrett, writing in the Canadian Public Health Journal. The reductions vary from 64 per cent. in Alberta to 33 per cent. in Quebec. In Ontario it was 60 per cent. between 1921 and 1939.

One reason for improvement is, that the disease is now brought to light much earlier than formerly, says Dr. Wherrett, but even now too many patients are admitted to sanatoria when their cases are already hopeless.

In order to diagnose the disease as early as possible, and before it has caused noticeable symptoms, the doctor recommends that surveys be made, especially among the following:

Contacts of known cases and deaths (ten times as liable to tuberculosis as other families); nurses and nurses in training; university and normal school students; teachers; high school and public school students; mental hospitals; mining and other industries; recruits for the army; domestic servants; mothers and Indian reserves.

Great increase is reported in the number of sanatorium beds available. There were fewer than 2,000 twenty-five years ago; this year the total will be about 11,000. Ontario's position in this respect is particularly favourable, with no waiting lists at the sanatoria and with a death rate of 28 per 100,000 as against 63.8 for the whole of Canada.

DAUGHTER OF DESTINY

—BY—

Eleanor Atterbury Colton

CHAPTER XXXV.

Devona went through the next few days in a troubled dream. Shopping, poring over timetables, phoning for reservations, she attended to every detail with only part of her mind. With the other, she tried to believe all this was really happening.

Talbot, so busy with interviews, publicity agents, costumers, song-writers, she saw only fleetingly. And Dale, preparing for the trial that would—if he won—convict Macias and his ring of henchmen, and put Dale himself directly in line for State District Attorneyship, was working indefatigably.

The trial opened two days before the simple wedding at the Chapel of the Flowers was to take place.

"I wish one of us could be there to hear Dale's speech," Tal said the evening before. "But I can't possibly make it. Not and be ready to leave on Friday. But why can't you go? Or have you too much shopping?"

Devona negatively shook her head. Shopping when there was this chance to watch Dale reach his goal. "It can wait. I'll be there."

So, promptly at 10, that important morning, she slipped into the courtroom, into one of the rear seats, and waited impatiently through all the preliminary court procedure, her eyes on Dale's dark head bent now over a bundle of papers he'd taken from his brief case.

A few minutes later, the trial began.

Several witnesses whom she'd never seen were interrogated swiftly, carefully. Dale's questions were simple, clear-cut, direct. His manner, courteous but firm.

Then members of the sinister little gang whom she did recognize were called to the stand. Freda's pallid face, eyes wide with terror, voice almost inaudible, replied nervously to Dale's questions. And probably no one in that audience but felt sorry for the poor girl. Obviously in love with the handsome Macias, she'd let herself in for heartbreak. But she wasn't criminal. Devona was glad when Dale finally dismissed her.

Then Wong, impassive, shy. And his admission that he had been "planted" in Vera Vadne's lovely hacienda simply because Jose Macias knew that Dale was a frequent visitor there, and because Wong was clever at pilfering information from bugging briefcases, faithful in reporting that information to his chief.

Finally, Jose Macias himself was sworn in. Stepping arrogantly to the stand, his handsome, evil dark eyes swept imperiously over the courtroom as he took his oath to tell the whole truth, nothing but the truth.

Anxiously she leaned forward, her ears striven to catch Dale's every word, his every question. And with every moment her pride in him mushroomed bigger and bigger.

And finally, when Dale turned to the jury to summarize his case, he spoke so eloquently, with such quiet, well-reasoned judgment that when he closed and sat down, the little audience burst into spontaneous applause.

Devona's eyes were wet with happy tears as she stumbled out of the gallery and made her way through the corridor outside to Dale's private office.

He came in a moment later, his triumph written in his smile.

"We won, Devona! Congratulations are in order," he held out his hands to her. "They let the little blonde off, but we've caught the big ones."

"Dale! I'm so glad, so thrilled for you. You were wonderful, really."

She had intended it should only be a friendly handclasp—but somehow, suddenly she was in his arms, her lips pressed hard against his.

He held her tight against his shoulder for a long moment. Then, as behind them, the door swung open, shut again with a little swish, they kept apart, flushing guiltily as they faced the intruder.

It was Freda Camp!

"Hello," Dale said quietly. "Was there something—?"

"Yes," she stared at him, her blue eyes vacant, wild. "Yes, there is. You can't send Jose to jail. You can't! You can't!"

Her pinched white face worked hysterically as, with a jerk, she pulled something out of her pocket and screamed: "You can't do that to him! I'll kill you first!"

Then she fled.

Dale's leap toward her came an instant too late. Staggering, he crumpled to the floor almost at the girl's feet while she, still screaming, buried her face in her hands.

Instantly the room swarmed with people. Officers, clerks and a moment later the Judge himself.

Tumb with shock, Devona watched them lift Dale, his face deathly white, and carry him to the worn leather sofa.

"Call an ambulance!" some one shouted.

"I've got the girl!"

"Clear the corridor!"

Then the wailing shriek of a siren.

At the hospital they made her wait in the corridor outside the room. Wait for hours—pacing the long hall, studying every face that came out of that room for some sign, some signal.

"He's conscious now—or will be soon," a soft-voiced nurse told her finally. "You say you have sent for his brother?"

Devona nodded and tip-toed to the bedside. For the space of a sigh his eyes flickered open, found her face bent close to his own, recognized her.

"Don't go—," he murmured, slipped back into unconsciousness probably before he heard her promise.

"I won't, darling."

Tal came finally and kept vigil with her through that interminable day, the long hours of the night.

And when at 4 the next morning the tide did turn, there was no more hemorrhaging, and there was hope, the doctor turned to Devona smiled kindly. "He'll be all right now."

Dale, as if to corroborate the doctor's judgment, opened his eyes, smiled at her, said, "Sure—I'm all right."

Devona lost her head. The strain of the long vigil, her relief, her surging joy sent her flying to that bedside, tears spilling down her cheeks as she sobbed.

"Oh, Dale, my darling. Thank God. If anything had happened—"

"Darling, I couldn't have stood it."

And pressing her face close to his, she buried her sobs in his pillows.

Dale's good arm went around her shaking shoulders quickly. "Here, honey. None of that, please."

She couldn't stop. Not for the moment. But when she did dry her tears, pull herself together, she saw the quiet smile on Tal's face.

Dale saw it, too. And when Tal, muttering something about coming back later, lunged out of the room, Devona turned stricken eyes to meet Dale's.

"Now I've done it," she said. "Tal—knows!"

"He mustn't!" Dale's face clouded with anxiety instantly. "You're engaged to him! You're going to stay engaged! To-morrow is your wedding day, isn't it?"

Devona glanced to the window where a cold, foggy dawn was already pushing back the darkness of this past night. "Yes—my wedding day."

"Go call Tal back," Dale said, angry now. "Go tell him something—anything. Quick! Before he—"

Devona flung open the door, her heels chattering a sharp staccato on the deserted corridor floor as she ran to the elevator. No sign of Tal in the lobby below. His car gone from the parking space outside. Frantic now, she fled back to the hospital office.

"Call a taxi—quick!"

A moment later as her cab hurtled across town, Devona, for the second time, prayed that she might not be too late. Because, and realization drove her deep into her soul, if Tal succeeded in destroying himself this time because of her, Dale would never forgive her. She would never forgive herself! Never!

She went directly to the old Brasher home. Tal had not been there since morning. Nor was there any message at her hotel. The sleepy clerk hadn't seen any one. Nor the night watchman at the office building where Tal had been working with publicity men.

By 10 o'clock that morning, Devona had been everywhere she could think of. Absolutely no trace of Talbot.

Desperate, exhausted, she returned to the hospital.

Dale, ashen but calm, was dressed now, his coat flung over the heavily bandaged shoulder, the sleeve dangling. He looked up anxiously.

"You didn't find him?"

"Wearily, hopelessly, Devona shook her head. 'No, not yet.'"

They called the police then. And every hospital and every morgue in the county. Still—no Talbot.

Dale's anxiety grew hourly. And with it, Devona's selfrecrimination. Why hadn't she used her head? Why had she let happen the very thing they had both decided must never happen! Three lives ruined now. And all because she'd so selfishly—so thoughtlessly—

"Please, Dale, can't I do something?" she begged, frantically. Can't I hunt—somewhere. He must be—"

Dale nodded. "I'll go with you."

"But you can't! Your shoulder."

"It's all right. Come on."

The nurses looked skeptical and the doctor shook his head, but Dale paid no attention. He merely thrust his car keys into her hand, said curtly: "You drive. We'll start with the bars."

They went to every bar in Los Angeles. Aching tired, she was sure they couldn't have missed one. To movie theatres, where they flashed Tal's name on the screen. Back to the police station. Everywhere. Still—no Tal.

It was as if he had simply vanished into thin air.

Radical Reform

Sergeant Pilots Will Now Mess With Officers In Western Desert

A sensible reform has been made in the Western Desert, and it may lead to others. In future the sergeant pilots in the fighter squadrons will mess with the officer pilots. The distinction drawn between the two sets of men is all the more ridiculous because operation flights are often led by sergeant pilots.

One distinction has thus been abolished, and it would be well also to abolish the custom of giving one kind of reward and decoration to commissioned pilots and another to sergeant pilots.

The officer who has made this change gave two sound reasons for it. One is that the officers' mess often entertains visitors who are senior officers with wide experience, and their conversation is instructive for younger men whose experience necessarily has been much more limited. The second reason the officer gave was that the discussion of the details of an operation that has just been carried out is part of a flying man's training, and it was therefore absurd to break up the men who had taken part in it as they returned and to send them to separate messes.

It shows how conservative the Services are that these considerations have been appreciated only in the third year of the war. But the English caste system dies hard—Manchester Guardian.

Crew Of Trawlers Operating From Hull Prove Good Marksmen

Hull, for so long target for the Luftwaffe, has been hitting back hard. The Squadron Leader Thompson, of the city, recently captured a U-boat, and now a Hull armed trawler has sent one to the bottom.

But then, Hull has been hitting back almost from the start of the war. In the early days the little ships that sailed in and out of the port so gallantly carried no arms, and when the Nazi boys flew over them for a little shooting and bombing practice their only defence lay in the expert seamanship and evading tactics of their skippers.

About the first thing the little ships did when they came in again was to send a deputation along to the Port Admiral to ask for a gun. Eventually guns were forthcoming. The seamen's gunnery schools turned out marksmen in next to no time.

I used to watch these men of the little ships at their training, serious-faced, with old blue jerseys up to their necks and old floppy caps perched well back on their heads. One of the most moving sights in all the world was to see one of these little ships making off down river with a gun poked out from its bows at the angle of a Churchill cigar. Soon, some of the Nazi boys who came over stayed over.

Mind you, they did not all get the guns they clamored for. Not at first. There was a little outburst about going about the "North Sea" skipped by a tough little man, who could talk somewhat sourly about the Admiralty and its regulations. It seems he could not have a gun because his boat was not big enough. Not big enough, indeed! Well, anyway, it was big enough to do some really smart manoeuvring. The day one of our own U-boats came down into the sea, and big enough to take the pilot of the "phone aboard."

"Splendid!" said the Admiralty heartily when they heard all about it. They were so pleased with the skipper's smart performance that they wanted to know what they could do for him. They had forgotten all about the matter of the gun. The skipper had not.

"What about it now?" he demanded grimly.

He got it. Leeds Yorkshire Post.

Barite In Canada

Developments On Deposit In Nova Scotia Will Increase Production

Production of barite in Canada which in 1940 amounted to only 330 tons, the department of mines and resources announces, is likely to reach an annual rate considerably in excess of 100 times that figure as outcome of developments now under way on a deposit at Pembroke, Hants county, Nova Scotia. Barite is used in drilling for oil, where advantage is taken of its relatively high specific gravity to aid in controlling gas pressure. It is also widely used as an inert filler in rubber, paper, oil, cloth, textiles, leather and plastics and as pigment and extender in paints.

Flying Dentist Who Served Trappers And Eskimos Is Dead

Dr. Ole A. Brandstad, 54, Alaska's far-flying dentist, is dead. Using dog teams and later airplanes, he visited practically every village on Alaska's northern coast and made long trips to isolated trappers' cabins and Eskimo huts to relieve persons with aching teeth.

Yawning is caused by a lack of oxygen and not from boredom.

Danes Bent On Sabotage

Put Metal Filings In Pork Shipments

Gone To Germany
Danes filed cases of pork consigned to Germany with metal filings, said R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture, describing conditions in occupied Europe in a speech at Norwich, England. He based his remarks on information from the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

The metal filings were an example of sabotage by the Danes, who were compelled to send all their exports to Germany. Mr. Hudson said Danish farmers have had no oilcake for months, even for dairy cows. There was no prospect of them getting any until after the war.

In Holland finest strains of bulbs have been bought up by the Germans and ground down into coffee substitute. Dutch farmers were short of fertilizers they had less than 40 per cent of normal supplies of phosphates and less than 70 per cent of normal supplies of nitrogen.

In Belgium the food shortage was so acute seed potatoes were dug up by night by hungry villagers last spring. Guards had to be posted in the fields to stop this. Much of the livestock, particularly pigs and poultry, had been taken away by the Germans.

In France the bullock-fattening industry of Soissons and St. Quentin had been destroyed because the best animals had been removed to Germany and could not be replaced. Oilcake was non-existent and sugar beet residues only half what they were before the war.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The greatest grace of a gift, perhaps, is that it anticipates and admits of no return.—Longfellow.

For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.—Isaiah 9:6.

Give, if thou canst, an alms: if not, afford, instead of that, a sweet and gentle word.—Herrick.

The basis of Christmas is the rock, Christ Jesus; its fruits are inspiration and spiritual understanding of joy and rejoicing—not because of tradition, usage, or corporal pleasures, but because of fundamental and demonstrable truth, because of the heaven within us.—Mary Baker Eddy.

We must take care to indulge only in such generosity as will help our friends and hurt no one. . . . for nothing is generous, if it is not at the same time just.—Cicero.

"What means this glory round our feet?"

The Magi mused, "more bright than morn!"

The voices cleared and sweet.

"Today the Prince of Peace is born!"—James Russell Lowell.

Life-Saving Equipment

Shipwrecked Sailors Now Have Better Chance Of Being Rescued

Great strides have been made in the past year or two in perfecting life-saving equipment for shipwrecked sailors. One of the problems facing those charged with designing new equipment was the need of saving sailors and passengers from Nazi bullets as well as hungry waters.

One type of life-saving belt has a flashing red lamp attached by a long cord. This is so that the lighted lamp will not disclose the location of the seaman to the enemy. For it has been learned by tragic experience that Nazi-U boats and planes make a habit of deliberately machine-gunning men, women, too, who are floating helplessly in the water.

So the fight to save life at sea cannot be directed at the sea alone as long as such people as Nazis are in the world.

Another of the new devices is a lamp that flashes the SOS signal in red light. This electric lamp is attached to all rafts on merchant ships and it begins operating automatically the moment the raft hits the water. Life-saving vests also have a red flashlight attached, with which the wearer can attract the attention of rescue craft.—Edmonton Journal.

Want Larger Eyes

"The Lido eye operation" is becoming popular in Tokyo, where one surgeon is prospering because Japanese women want their eyes to open wider and give them a "soulful look."

To save history, many brides in Bath, England, are stockpiling.

SMARTLY STYLED CURTAIN

ANY BEGINNER CAN MAKE

Swag Tacked To Valance Board

So practical, these draperies topped with a graceful swag!

You may make them yourself—combining just the colors for your room. Rayon damask in dusty rose for the draperies, rayon satin for the swag, brown fringe for trimming—that's one stunning choice.

To have your draperies hang beautifully, correct measuring is necessary—but easy. For length, measure from top of window casing to floor, adding 10 or 15 inches if you wish your draperies to extend on floor. Lined draperies need another 2 inches for a single turn hem and for top turn-in 4 inches.

For width, just measure the space the curtain will cover and add 50 per cent, for folds.

The swag starts as a straight piece a little wider than your window. Slant ends and curve bottom edge as the diagram shows. And, when the swag's lined and trimmed, tack it to valance board.

Our 32-page booklet has exact diagrams and directions for making many attractive styles of draperies, drapery-curtains and glass curtains. Tells how to trim, make swags, valances.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "New Ideas In Making Curtains And Draperies" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

The following booklets are also available at 15c each:

Women In Germany Asked To Save Electric Current

German housewives have been asked to rearrange their schedules in order to help save electric current needed last to accelerate the country's raw material production. Housewives were asked to refrain from using vacuum cleaners, irons and other appliances from 6 to 10 a.m.; described as the crucial period of power consumption.
